Besides, dur-ing the last week, Barstow and other leaders

Ot the bills thrown out by your bankers only twently are rejected here, and it is confidently expected that some of them will make up their securities. The bill amending the hanking law has passed both houses, but there are some trifling amendments about which there was a difference of opinion between the few of thouses, to harmonize which a committee of conference has been appointed, who have agreed on a report and the bill will doubtless finally pass to bay recommended by them.

The proposed amendment to the Constitution passed by Congress, and transmitted from Washington, is still in the pocket of the Committee on Federal Relations. That Committee have reported against a National Convention to amend the Constitution as it is. Wisconsin does not think this time of excitement is a proper one to meddle with the instrument framed by the wisest of our fathers. The Assembly adopted a resolution expressing hearty, approval of the policy of reinforcing and holding the forts, and de. laring that Wisconsing the forts, and demanded the protection of United States property. There have been one or two consultations in the Executive office between the Governor who has recently been to Washington, other State officers, and members of the Legislature, with reference to the existing state of affairs, and it is probable such a measure will be adopted as will put the State in a position to aid the Federal G verament in case of need.

On Saturday last a memorial was presented from S M Booth, claiming $50,000 damages (!) of the State for her failure and neglect to protect his rights and liberties against the conforcement of the Fugitive Shave Law by the Federal Government, when he had been dischanged by the State Courta. The Legislature refused to act on the subject, under the resolution cutting off new business. It is said Mr. Booth proposes to sue for this claim in the State Courts.

The Assembly has passed a bill taking from the LaCrosse Railroad Company for the construction of that part of the Land Grant Railroad between here and Portage City.

There has been a sharp context in the Senate on a bill granting the Swamp Lands to the counties in which they lie. The debate was one of the most earnest of the easelon. The bill was once defeated by a small majority, but the vois was reconsidered, and after long debate, the Senate finally refused to pass the bill by a vote of 16 to 11. If the lands were thus distributed it is generally believed the whole fund would soon be frittered away and go to the conties a few middle. We have bad copious rains. The frost is out of the ground, and the ice ne

The heavy rains have saved it sure. Bully for them in that particular.

Now about the growing of cotton. Some of your Southern correspondents have offered to furnish the seed. Let is m do so at once. Let the Secretary lif the Secretary please) of the Illinois State Agricultural Society send a package to care of Bacon & Co., of this place, and your correspondent will pay express charges, and distribute. Let him send to oth-er localities, also, if he has the means. I er localities, also, if he has the means. I would advise that it be planted with and in the same manner as corn, and so cultivated western exposure, so as to swoid the injury by early and late froats.

It should be borne in mind that the plant has to be acclimated—to be trained to do as much growing, blowing, and bolling in four or five mostles as further South in six or seven. It will be found as plastic to the hand of man as the tomato or the pepper, I have no doubt.

I hope nobody will think they are to get a profitable crop at present; it is hardly possi-ble. But the value of an ultimate success is ble. But the value of an utilimate success is so enormous, that every man interested in the soil of Illinois ought to be willing to help the thing along. The experiment I propose in-volves no outly of money or of tools. The whole to be done is simply to drop, in the corn rows, cotion seed instead of corn kernels, and to cultivate it as the form is cultivated, In such a way a heavier and quicker growth can be had than by garden culture, as every one knows that corn, well plowed, in the open fields, far outstrips in growth that cultivated in the richest gardens, with the most saidnous attention. Tours, JAY.

Porney on the New Policy of the Administration.

In view of the events of the last few days, the editor of the Philadelphia Press expresses ble sentiments as follows: his sentiments as follows:

I am a man of poscs. As I said, I have begged for it in these columns and in this city, as you have begged for it at your homes, almost on mr knees. But are there not calamities worse than war? Is not the destruction of our Union by those who have no gratitude for the past, and no respect for the future, worse China nay war? Said we not save it before it is too late? But, how? By committing the case to have publicervasts, who, having offered all fair measures of amity and peace, must now be asked to enforce the laws and to protect the public property. If from this set war is to follow, better that it should come in that way than that war should be forced upon in by his sentiments as follows

Judge Cole's friends relied too much on his high character and eminent fines for his place. very soon at the head of a Union movement, there, in which it is said that the "Creoles," or natives, will join. Benjamia, it will be remembered, is a South Carolinian by birth, and New York has supplied John Slidell, Miles Taylor, Deputy Collector Walden, and other assessionists, while the ferocious Collector Hatch is a Vermonier. It may be that the native Louisianians may revive a Know Nothing movement, in which case Uncle Sam will have a few troops ready in vessels off the Southwest Pass and Pass & TOutre, to add loyal citizens in maintaining their allegiance.

Coercion by an Invading army is what no intelligent peason does or ever did contemplate. The evils would be infinite with no compensating benefits from anch a course. But there is a greater coercion which if would be expedient to apply and which, is a short time—leas than a year—would prove adequate for restoring a majority of the people of the secoding States to their senses. That mode of coercion will soon be found to be a thing of necessity. If not adopted, the secoding States will compet the nation. They will soon see that their true financial policy is to have a rate of outlies very much lower than ours, that they can collect more revenue with a duty of ten than with one of twenty per cent. With a duty of only ten per cent. Here will do the importing of many articles for the whole nation. The facilities of smuggling upon such an extended froutler, would reader the cost of prevention too great to be even actional. an extended frontier, would reader the cost of prevention too great to be even seriously attempted. Thus the national treasury will be nearly dried up—the national credit destroyed; no power to borrow money left; and no adequate means for carrying on the Government. To prevent this, there will probably be an early call of Congress to obtain power to collect the duties on board ship, as was given in the days of President Jackson. The talk about achiev when the days of President Jackson. The talk about achiev when the days of President Jackson. The talk about achiev when the days of President Jackson. The talk about achiev when the days of President Jackson. The talk are did to the days of President Jackson. The talk are do not seen to do either the days of the Constitution, which there is no probability of being made.

those States will never return until their people can wrest the power from the hands of those perulcious traitors. Till then we must have patituce, but in the meantime, instead of wasting our sympathies upon those who have no sympathy for us, but are seeking our rain, we must by a rational, reasonable adjustment seek to consolidate the Union feeling in the border slave States, without regard to the acceptability of such adjustment to the secreting States. That once done we can advisedly determine what is due to ourselves in any final adjustment. If Virginia and North Carolina can, without 100 much detriment to themselves, permit the Atlantic States and Alabama to secode, why let them go, we of the West shall not object. With most of us the final exit of South Carolina would be deemed a happy riddinger. For a parity of reason Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina will permit Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and Arkanass to contest the same question as to Louisians and Mississippi. As to that hard bargain, the utgrateful, perfiduer Texas, nothing need the said. But as to Louisians Texas, nothing need the said. But as to Louisians Texas, nothing need the said. But as to Louisians and Massissippi, much may well be said, as perchance much may have to be done.

vote our sympathies to our home-staying brethren. Or, if our sympathies must follow those who have left us, left it be those who true to their Kentucky interests, are still loyal to the Union, and settled in Union-term their staying to the Union, and settled in Union-term term cases, who led off in such no she style by such a friumphant majority of her people against disunion, and contains four times more Kentuckians than Louisians, or to Missouri who made an equally triumphant protest against disunion, and contains twenty times as many Kenteckians as Louisians. Why should our sympathies overlook our immediate neighbors across the Ohio, who have such an identity of interest with ourselves in the preservation of the Union, and whose prosperity is so indissoubly connected with our own. The census of 1850 shows that there were nearly as many Kentuckians in Ohio sa in all the seceding States, in Illinois more than three times as many. Besides, if the Union should be irretrievably broken up, it is to those three States that Kentucky, Tennesace, and Missouri must look for their principal aid in constructing that new Confederacy, proclaimed and defined by nature herself, which will then be so indispensible to our permanent peace and prosperity.

Outside the gate a long line of drays, loaded with stores and grain and feed for horses, was in waiting for a chance to discharge.

At the same time there were alongside the ship no less than five lighters, come containing provisions, and one was loaded with shell. The eargoes of these lighters were rapidly transferred to the Allantie, and others soon took their place. A large amount of cament was also taken on. The large quantities of shot and shell and sumution, together with a sumber of howlizers and smaller arms, seemed to give note of preparation for events of no minor importance. About noon a passage was cleared for a baggage wagon, which was loaded with frunks, cheets, values and carpet bags. The name "Macginnis" was quite conspicaous upon some of them. The tranks were marked. "Checked to Washington."
